Hurricane Ike Revisited

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The SSPEED Center is proud to present a one-day conference to mark the first anniversary of Hurricane Ike disaster. This special day long event will host technical talks on the hurricane and lessons learned, what new programs and policies have been put into place since the storm and will provide an information transfer on the recovery and renewal efforts for the Houston area. This conference will be the first outcome of the SSPEED Center since being funded generously by the Houston Endowment to evaluate the impacts of Hurricane Ike and the steps to the future. Some research findings from this ongoing extensive project will be shared in the conference.

"The online risk calculator" website developed by SSPEED researchers with support from City of Houston that provides residents of Harris County the information in real time about their risk from an approaching hurricane for wind, flood and surge will also be presented in the conference.

In the evening, we will provide an open meeting to the public which will include key personnel from the city and county who played major roles in the planning and recovery phases of Hurricane Ike.
